Inside the 2018 Kips Bay Decorator Show House

Filed Under: Decorating IdeasTastemakers

This year marks the 46th iteration of The Kips Bay Decorator Show House, a month-long event for which designers do their best work in the interest of a good cause. Now open to the public at 110 East 76th Street in New York City, the show house features rooms by such design notables as Mark D. Sikes, Alexa Hampton, and Alessandra Branca, with proceeds from ticket sales benefiting the Kips Bay Boys and Girls Club.

“A room should be filled with things you love,” says Philip Mitchell in discussing his drawing-room design. Packed with collections of things old and new—art by today’s darlings and yesterday’s masters; shelves lined with far-flung treasures; vintage textiles on fresh upholstery—the space evokes a person with an eye for beauty and a magpie mind.
